The Jury System.
 The jury as it is found today is a relic of the ancient popular justice. In the communities of antiquity the entire male population passed upon the guilt or innocence of the offending party. The oldest Greek poet has left us a picture of what the primitive jury was. The court is sitting; the question of "Guilty" or "Not guilty" is put, and the old men of the community in turn give their opinion, the rank and file of the people standing about applauding the opinion that strikes them most, the applause determining the decision. Gradually the jury became narrowed down in numbers until it appears as we see it today.

All the news all the time—The Argus.

The Shrapnel Secret.
 The secret of making shrapnel was unknown outside England until 1884, yet Great Britain never repaid its inventor the capital spent on his experiments. All he got was £1,200 a year, and the offer of a baronetcy, which he was too poor to accept. General Shrapnel's son had to sell the family estate of Midway Manor, in Wiltshire, where on the park gate pillars may be still be seen pyramids of
